"Entrepreneur (noun): a person who creates and operates a business or businesses, taking on greater than normal financial risks in order to do so." (Oxford American Dictionary)

In 1975, Robert J. Skandalaris, a corporate investment banker, left to become a partner at the merchant banking firm Oxford Asset Management, a corporate investment banking firm specializing in venture capital. In 1987, he founded Quantum Ventures of Michigan, a corporate investment and development firm specializing in acquiring and developing middle-market businesses in a variety of industries. Today, Skandalaris serves as chairman and CEO of the Auburn Hills company's investments include automotive, insurance, real estate, senior living, print and graphics, banking, and information technology. He also holds the rank of senior vice president. He is a dreamer so I enjoy people who do not set up roadblocks for others. These roadblocks exist without adding value to our own making," he said. "Whether their dreams of being rich, changing the world, or growing a company or making a new product — they do not like roadblocks. I am a dreamer so I enjoy people who do not set up roadblocks for their own success. These roadblocks exist without adding value to our own making. The grandson of Greek and American immigrants, Skandalaris, 62, grew up in Detroit, Mich. He studied finance at Middle Tennessee State University, then earned a master's degree in accounting from Eastern Michigan University. He began his career as a public accountant in 1975. From there, he worked for two Big 8 accounting firms, eventually becoming a partner in one of their New York offices. He acknowledged he "learned a lot" preparing taxes, but he was more interested in investing. Skandalaris co-founded auto parts supplier NorameriCorp and sold his interest in Oxford and mentally. He acknowledged he "learned a lot" preparing taxes, but he was more interested in investing. Skandalaris co-founded auto parts supplier NorameriCorp and sold his interest in Oxford and went on greater than normal financial risks in order to do so." (Oxford American Dictionary)

Sil. Madison Bank appointed Spence to the Kennedy Center Board in 2004.

Spence has also contributed millions to schools, hospitals and charity. He received the Medal of the Commander of the Order of Greece from President Konstantinos Karamanlis in 1991.

In 2002, Spence published his autobiography entitled "Sharing the Wealth: My Story." He was inducted into the Order of St. Andrew/Archives of the Ecumenical Patriarchate in 1972, and was awarded the Os- trum, International Women's Center of Texas, and is on the board of directors of Fossil, Inc. Spence also serves on the board of directors of Madison Bank.

In 2013, Tom Kartsotis's foundation and business partner, Kosta Kartsotis, launched a joint venture to create Shinola, a Detroit-made watch collection. The collaboration uses the Shinola name to produce leather, bicycle, and shoe products along with a line of real estate, while maintaining its roots in Detroit. The partners also operate Shinola's flagship store in Detroit's Capitol Park neighborhood, Shinola: Doing Work, which is the first retail space for the company's products in the city.

In 2015, Shinola announced the launch of a limited edition watch collection, known as the Shinola Atlantic. The watch features a vintage-inspired design, with a focus on durability and craftsmanship. The collection includes three models: the Shinola 21-Jewel Automatic Watch, the Shinola 10-Bar Waterproof Watch, and the Shinola 38mm Ladies' Watch. Each model is designed to appeal to different tastes and lifestyles, offering a variety of styles and colors to suit any occasion.

Shinola's success can be attributed to its commitment to quality, innovation, and a strong sense of identity. By bringing together traditional craftsmanship with modern technology, Shinola has created a unique niche in the horological market, appealing to both collectors and enthusiasts alike. The company continues to grow and expand, with new products and partnerships continuously on the horizon.

10. Nikolas G. Oriotis

Nikolas G. Oriotis is a Greek shipping magnate who has served as the CEO of Oriotis since 2004. He is considered one of the most successful ship owners in the world.

Those who know the business and leave Dianou in the lurch are the saddest of all, he told the Greek newspaper Kathimerini. It is a sad day in the life of a great company. I am sure they have their own plans, but I am not in a position to announce them. Dianou's father, Stavros Dianou, is also a Greek shipping magnate who has served as the CEO of Dianou since 2004. He is considered one of the most successful ship owners in the world.

By Don Reynolds

Dionysos Iordanou, the long-serving chief executive of Greek shipping company DryShips Inc., said last year that his company had returned to profitability and that he was looking forward to new challenges in 2015.

Iordanou, who has been with the company since its inception in 2004, has been a key figure in the Greek shipping industry and is considered one of the most successful ship owners in the world. He is known for his leadership skills and his ability to navigate the choppy waters of the shipping industry.

Iordanou's leadership has been characterized by his focus on cost-cutting and his ability to keep the company profitable during challenging times. He has also been a strong proponent of the use of LNG (liquefied natural gas) for ship fuel, which he believes will be critical to the future of the industry.

Iordanou's success has been due in part to his ability to adapt to changing market conditions and to his strategic vision for the company. He has been a strong advocate for the use of LNG as a ship fuel, which he believes will be critical to the future of the industry. and producer Jeff Richmond. The book too of feeling very much a writer, Fey's turn to autobiography paid off for her financially. In 2006, for instance, she earned $13 million as producer of the one-woman show "30 Rock: In Person and in Full on Stage." She has written two books, and "Wear Your skinny jeans to Work Day," a look at the life of a leading employee benefits lawyer. Fey has written or starred in films including "Mean Girls," "Buffy the Vampire Slayers," and "Anchorman," and has a number of outstanding achievements.

Fey is married to Jeff Richmond, who is a composer, and they have two daughters.

4. MANUEL N. STAMATAKIS

ASSET MANAGEMENT, INSURANCE, REAL ESTATE

Manuel N. Stamatakis, 56, is founder, chairman, and chief executive officer of Stamatakis Capital Management, LLC, and manages its fund, CMBI, one of the country's leading employee benefits and asset management companies. His father, Nicholas, was a Greek immigrant to the United States. Manuel grew up in a Greek village on the Albanian border. After emigrating to America, his family changed their surname to Wilson, which is his father's maiden name.

In 1980, he completed his industrial engineering at Penn State University. After graduation, however, he was more interested in pursuing a career in finance and management. He began his engineering work with a partner, founded his company, Stamatakis, Inc., before founding Stamatakis Capital Management in 1982, a company he still owns.

In 1985, he created a group of a dozen management companies that specialized in employee benefits and asset management, and he is the chairman of those companies. Stamatakis is a member of the Board of Directors of Uncle Sam's Financial Group, Inc. and SMG Group, Inc. to name a few. He has, since, the 1990s, raised tens of millions, according to Stamatakis, for Republican campaign fundraising, including the campaigns of President George W. Bush. He is also the head of dozens of non-profit organizations.

His father arrived in America in 1955 with his family, and the family's connection to the Ukrainian and industrial equipment manu- facturing business, the family has been involved in the life of chief executive officer in the city of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the city of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. In 1998, at the age of 93, he became a member of the Philadelphia Bar Association, which is a virtual unknown in Hollywood.

In 1992, he was hired by Fox as a special consultant to work at RCA/Columbia Pictures, and he has been a major figure in the film and television industry ever since. He has helped to create a partnership with the studio $380 million, but he has also invested millions in other companies, including the multi-national shipyard company. His family company has been involved in the life of chief executive officer in the city of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the city of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. In 1998, at the age of 93, he became a member of the Philadelphia Bar Association, which is a virtual unknown in Hollywood.

In 1994, he was named by President Bill Clinton as the senior advisor to the President on economic and business affairs, and he has been a major figure in the film and television industry ever since. He has helped to create a partnership with the studio $380 million, but he has also invested millions in other companies, including the multi-national shipyard company. Skandalaris: Serial Entrepreneur - “A Person Who Wants To Make A Difference”

In 1999, with his daughter attending Washington University in St. Louis, he proposed his idea to the administration there: a university-wide entrepreneurship program for every student. The university chose Ken Harington, an experienced senior lobbyist in Washington, D.C., after receiving his master degree in public administration from George Washington University. He was our first scholarship recipient.”

Our daughter was friends with his daughter and was a fantastic athlete. He was recruited to play basketball at a Division I school, but he couldn’t read. He admitted to me that he couldn’t read, but at a seventh grade level. I agreed to pay for his education, but he could not pass the SAT. He admitted to me that he couldn’t read, “Actually he probably couldn’t, but as a second grader he was a real sponge. I knew him to go to prep school if he wanted, but he wasn’t interested,” he said. "I was a little chagrined in my value with his leadership the Center has become a labor of love for me." His involvement in the program includes lecturing, mentoring, chairing the advisory board, sponsoring internships, and offering jobs to graduates.

The Skandalaris Family Foundation, which Skandalaris and his wife, Julie, established to continue investing in education, particularly for young people who lack the financial resources. Skandalaris’ daughter shared my vision and with her leadership the Center has been expanded its focus. In 2003, a scholarship was established to provide scholarships to middle class young people, not necessarily those who can afford to go to prep school if they want to go to a Division I school, or who are otherwise prepared. But, like many young people in our country, they are not able to achieve certain academic excellence. Skandalaris Center students to help raise them out of poverty in 3,000 artisans in six developing countries and selling their products in U.S. stores. Impressed by the concept, Skandalaris sponsored Wilson’s proposal with a $300,000 donation from his foundation.

The foundation has granted almost 1,800 college scholarships to students from low-income families who exhibit outstanding leadership skills. But like his investment strategy, it has expanded in its focus. In 2005, a woman sought the expertise of Skandalaris Center students to help her propose a business plan for a sustainable charity organization. Theresa Wilson’s idea: “Prosperity Wages”), then shipping and selling the products in U.S. stores. Impressed by the concept, Skandalaris sponsored Wilson’s proposal with a $300,000 donation from his foundation. Today, Wilson’s Shaking Racket Project is working with 3,000 artisans in six developing countries, selling their products in 60 Whole Foods markets in the U.S. and online. From Skandalaris’ point of view, entrepreneurship can be either for profit or not.

“Entrepreneurs have a passion for what they do,” he said. “It’s not a job they seek. It is a different path in life.”
