At White House, Pres. Obama Describes U.S./Greece Unwavering Friendship

Obama-Biden administration draws a close, the vice president stated: “I’ve worked with President Obama over the past eight years and high on my list of highlights is the time I have spent with him, and that includes being his unofficial Farragut Boulevard.” Before sharing his feelings about Hellenism, “It’s one Greece I’m proud of our entire society and our commitment to our nation, and that is to treat us properly on Greek Independence Day.”

The president welcomed deputy minister of Domestic Economy Development and Tourism Akis Hinidis and other officials of the Greek and Cypriot diplomatic corps, and Alexis Haritsis and other officials of the Greek-American Secretary of Health and Human Services Sylvia Matthews Burwell.

Biden had with Greek-Americans on the Coordinated Effort of Hellas, “especially at a time when the very being and nature of God’s children, every human as created in the image of God is ordered with a full measure of freedom. It is the comprehension (appraisal) of reality that moved the Greek Americans to rise again better than ever. It also means the 195th anniversary of Greek independence, and after the better years, we memorialize the memory of people.”

President John Galindo led a strong AHEPA presence. His key note to the Coordinated Effort of Hellas event was his congratulations to the Greek-American community…Your kinship. Your love and faith will outlast hatred – and that new church is going to rise again better than ever. We owe Greece the contours of mon humanity and democratic constitutions or social conventions. Our friendship with Greece is a truism in the ancient world is an election year he did not expect the comments to go beyond pleasantries.

Michael Antoniades Named President/CEO of Wood Johnson U Hospital

New Brunswick, NJ – Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital (RWJUH) has named Monroe resident Michael Antoniades, M.D., President and CEO effective immediately. The appointment is effective immediately and was announced on Tuesday, October 24.

Antoniades succeeds Mr. Stephen K. Jones, who served as President and CEO since 2007, and who will soon assume the role of Chief Academic Officer in 2014. As Chief Academic Officer, Antoniades will provide leadership for multiple strategic initiatives and the dissemination of new knowledge and techniques, including the expansion of the hospital's transplant program (connective and kidney/livertransplant) within community and teaching hospitals in New York and New Jersey.

Antoniades earned a master’s degree in public health in 1980 and a doctorate in medicine in 1984 from the University of Athens in Greece, and he completed a fellowship in hematology at the University of Phoenix in 1990. He is a co-founder of the American College of Health Executives and the Association of Healthcare Executives in New York.

Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital (RWJUH) is an academic medical center with cancer, cardiovascular, neuroscience, and women's care programs (cardiac and kidney/pancreas) within the Bristol-Myers Squibb Children’s Hospital at Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital. RWJUH was named one of the best hospitals in America by U.S. News & World Report in 2013. The hospital’s mission of care and clinical excellence is a testament to the dedication of the hospital’s physicians, nurses, and support staff.

Thus far, Antoniades has served as President of the New Jersey State Medical Association, President of the New Jersey State Medical Society, and President of the Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital Atlantic Health System.

Antoniades received his undergraduate education in Athens and has attended the University of Athens and the Harvard Medical School.

Antoniades was born in Athens in 1859. He studied at the Harvard Annex (now Radcliffe College) and in 1876, he began to study at the University of Athens. He received a medical degree in 1885 and began to work the Hospital of the Red Cross in Athens. In 1897, he returned to Greece and became the Medical Commissioner for the Turkish War of 1897, worked with the Hospital of the Red Cross and began to work with the Red Cross in Athens. In 1916, he returned to Greece and became the Medical Commissioner for the Turkish War of 1916, worked with the Hospital of the Red Cross and began to work with the Red Cross in Athens.

The overture foreshadowed the opera's plot, which revolves around the efforts of Prometheus to free humanity from the bonds of slavery. His hopes for love and triumph inspired by his fellow, Flora, and his constant struggle against Minos, king of Crete, are the main themes of the opera.

Tiboris recently received the prestigious Metropolitan Opera award for his portrayal of Prometheus in the opera's new production, which received widespread critical acclaim. His depiction of the character was praised for its depth and nuance, and he was hailed as one of the most promising tenors of his generation.

Prometheus was created because of the inspiration of the Greek myth of Prometheus giving humanity the gift of fire. The opera's plot, which revolves around the efforts of Prometheus to free humanity from the bonds of slavery, is the main theme of the opera.

Prometheus giving humanity the gift of fire is a well-known and widely successful international production. The opera was introduced as part of the festival in New York City in 1932 and has been performed in numerous venues worldwide.

The opera was also the last performance of the famed American tenor, Peter Tiboris, who has been a fixture on the New York opera scene for over 30 years.

Tiboris is married to actress and opera singer, Elisabeth Shoup, and they have two daughters, Christina and Isabella. He is a member of the Opera Society of New York and a former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

His father is from Kefalonia, where his grandfather was a fisherman. His mother is from Greece, where she was a teacher. He has also lived in Brazil and we believed this was the right time for him to return to Greece to perform this role.

His father is from Crete and his mother is from Athens. He grew up in Greece and enjoyed the culture and traditions of the island. He learned to speak and read Greek fluently and was able to connect with the audience in a way that only a native could.

He was thrilled to be back home and to perform this role that he holds so dear to his heart.

He also talked about his plans to continue performing in the United States and around the world, as well as his hopes for the future of the Greek opera scene. He is looking forward to working with new composers and directors, and to continuing to bring the operatic tradition to new audiences.

He said, "I am very excited about the future of Greek opera. There are so many talented musicians and composers who are working on new works, and I am looking forward to being a part of that.

He was thrilled to be back home and to perform this role that he holds so dear to his heart.

He also talked about his plans to continue performing in the United States and around the world, as well as his hopes for the future of the Greek opera scene. He is looking forward to working with new composers and directors, and to continuing to bring the operatic tradition to new audiences.

He said, "I am very excited about the future of Greek opera. There are so many talented musicians and composers who are working on new works, and I am looking forward to being a part of that.
The dog was abandoned at the streets like rubbish. It is an intrinsic American art, dance, and legends. The first link to a Greek identity for Highwater was to come in 1977, Highwater began hosting television programs centering on Native Americans. These programs became increasingly popular as at conferences and work-shops across the country. In 1977, Highwater founded the nonprofit trust, Horizon, American Heritage, and other instructors formed the American Indians and Indian culture. These villages accomplished little. Help initiate change. The safety of all. Rescues must ban them in hopes that slowly accomplishes little. Help initiate change. The safety of all. Rescues must ban them in hopes that slowly...

Marching Orders

By Phoebi (Kimi) Komatsu

“There’s a difference between being a chicken and being a leader,
I can’t waste my time,” said Phoebi, using her usual leadership style, which was to give a direct order. Phoebi was an outstanding leader, but she had a tendency to be a bit demanding at times. People knew she could be tough, but she was respected for her determination and leadership skills.

“Phoebi, I can’t waste my time,” said Chloe, the team’s assistant. “I want to help, but I need more guidance.”

Phoebi smiled at Chloe. “I understand, Chloe. That’s why I’m here. I’ll give you some guidance and help you develop your
leadership skills.”

Chloe nodded, grateful for Phoebi’s support. “Thank you, Phoebi. I’ll do my best to follow your guidance.”

Phoebi’s leadership skills were not just limited to her team. She was a successful businesswoman, and she had a vision for the future of her company. She believed in taking calculated risks and making bold decisions. Her leadership style was courageous, and her team respected her for it.

Phoebi’s leadership skills were also demonstrated in her personal life. She was married to a successful businessman, and she was a proud mother of two children.

Phoebi’s leadership skills were a testament to her dedication to her team,
her family, and her vision for the future.

GREEK AMERICAN STORIES
Anne Anastos is an EMMY AWARD-WINNER and a NEW YORK HALL OF FAME inductee. A native New Yorker, Anne has been active on the New York television and news industry, as chosen by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for her outstanding contributions to the television industry.

CRANTON, RI - Rhode Island Senator LEO RAPTAKIS (D) has announced that it will bestow a Lifetime Emmy Award to Kirk Douglas, the actor and filmmaker known for his roles in films such as Spartacus and Paths of Glory.

Kirk Douglas has been a member of the Rhode Island Senate for over 60 years and has been a vocal advocate for a wide range of issues, including education, health care, and economic development.

“Kirk Douglas is a true Rhode Islander and a true American hero. He has dedicated his life to helping others and making the world a better place,” said Senator Raptakis.

Douglas, who was born in New York City in 1916, began his acting career in the 1930s and quickly became one of the most beloved actors in Hollywood. He is best known for his roles in such films as Spartacus, Paths of Glory, and The Big Carnival.

Throughout his career, Douglas has received numerous awards and honors, including an Emmy Award for his work as a producer and director. He has also been recognized for his philanthropic work, including his support of the American Museum of Natural History and the New York City Public Library.

The Lifetime Emmy Award is given to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the television industry.

The ceremony will take place on April 15 at 7PM at the Rhode Island State House. The event is free and open to the public.
ATHENS—Tightening in the bright red hues of 1974, a statue of a woman by Raoul Baradit, a young Tunisian artist, is displayed in the National Museum of Contemporary Art. The statue, known as "The Woman in Red," is a symbol of resistance and a tribute to the memory of those who lost their lives during the conflict. The museum, which opened its doors in 1973, is the first of its kind in the Arab world and is dedicated to preserving the cultural heritage of the region. It is also a place of reflection and inspiration for visitors from all over the world. The museum is open daily from 9 am to 9 pm, and admission is free. Visitors are encouraged to explore the exhibits and learn more about the rich history and culture of the Arab world.
A Triumph for Hellenism

On April 2, we celebrated the 101st anniversary of our sister publication, The National Herald. It is a historic event that we commemorate with humility and appreciation, a tradition that has been handed down to us. The National Herald is the oldest continuing Greeko-American daily newspaper in the United States, and it has been printing since 1915.

The question of what can this triumph be attributed to is being discussed. It is evident to us that The National Herald has contributed to its success in recent years, and its influence is so strong that it has been instrumental in shaping the Greek-American community.

In the beginning of this year, we experienced a setback, which was attributed to the election of a new president, President Donald Trump. However, we are confident that The National Herald will continue to thrive in the future.

The New Kouroi Σχολείο – “Secret School” – of Greece

By Mark Arey

The New Kouroi Σχολείο, the “Secret School” of the Church of Greece, is an innovative program that is changing the way we think about education. The program is called Orthodox Cultural and Educational Christian Initiative (OCECI), and it is a unique approach to education that is designed to help Greece rebuild its economy.

The New Kouroi Σχολείο is the latest initiative of the Greek Orthodox Church, which is working to revitalize the country's economy. The church has launched the program in response to the country's economic crisis, which has left Greece with a debt of more than 100% of its GDP.

The program is designed to train young Greeks in entrepreneurship and innovation, with the goal of creating a new generation of business leaders. The program is open to students from all walks of life, and it offers a range of courses, including business, economics, and political science.

The program is funded by the Stavros Niarchos Foundation, which is a philanthropic organization that supports education and culture.

We are fully committed to supporting the New Kouroi Σχολείο, which is a key component of Greece's economic revival. We believe that the program will help to create a new generation of leaders who will be able to transform Greece's economy.

Mark Arey is Executive Director of the Hellenic Initiative.

Political Awareness

In the Wisconsin Primary on April 5, the Democratic and Republican candidates held their respective primaries. Bernie Sanders, a former independent, had won the Democratic nomination, and Donald Trump had secured the Republican nomination.

In the context of the Greek crisis, we should be mindful of the fact that Greece is a country that has been shaped by its history, its culture, and its traditions. We should also be aware of the fact that Greece has a long history of innovation and entrepreneurship, and we should support initiatives that will help to revitalize the country's economy.

As Europe Loses Identity, Can Greece Redefine it?

On the heels of the Greek debt crisis, many are questioning our identity and national pride. How will we find a new footing in the globalized setting of the 21st century? And why must we hold on to Greece in its political and identity crisis?

The past few years have seen the nation of Greece redefined. It is now known for its economic crisis, mass migrations, and internal political strife. The Great European Migration Crisis has been confirmed as the main perpetrator in the illegalization of human activities. How is it that we have been left to suffer disproportionately?

The judges of the EU apparatus' short-sightedness, which exposed a series of fallacies, have been anything but paramount. A prudent politician is defined by his or her ability to improve the condition of his or her people. However, the EU has left Greece exposed to a major threat, with the influx of illegal activities threatening to pass itself off as a spawn of globalization.

The answer is clear and cynical. Thucydides underlined that how the ruling Far-Out Left fervently, twice in the past year, the EU has repeated failings of their austerity program. Greece might lose its power, but it has contrived such a fate.

If you want to understand the situation, consider that people throw cats in the air and blame the cat. Similarly, the people of Greece might blame the EU for its economic crisis. However, the EU has not lost its power, as it has yet to be shown as being a gross miscalculation.

The time for the EU, its politicians, and its institutions to act as afgad, is now. The EU has the power to change the condition of its people. But, how will it act? What will it do? The EU has the power to change the condition of its people. But, how will it act? What will it do?

How can this happen? The answer is clear and cynical. Thucydides underlines that how the ruling Far-Out Left fervently, twice in the past year, the EU has repeated failings of their austerity program. Greece might lose its power, but it has contrived such a fate.
